DISNEY-MCLANE & ASSOCIATES TO REPRESENT POWERS CONTROLS, A DIVISION OF WATTS WATER TECHNOLOGIES, IN SOUTHERN OHIO AND KENTUCKY

Powers Process controls, a division of Water Technologies, has named Disney-McLane & Associates as their representative for Southern Ohio and Kentucky.

From its earliest days as the Powers Regulator Company, Powers has been an innovator in the area of temperature control. The company was established in 1891, a few years after founder, William Penn Powers, invented the Vapor Disk Thermostat. This product innovation, the grandfather of today's room thermostat, was proudly displayed at Chicago's Worlds Fair in 1893.

The company would later expand on this technology, and come to dominate automatic temperature control for commercial buildings. Leveraging their core competency in temperature control, The Powers Regulator Company developed the first modern Pressure Balance Valve in 1924, bringing bather safety and comfort to modern plumbing.

Over the past hundred years, Powers has continued to pursue a tradition of product innovation. Today the company holds patents on technologies that serve as the backbone for many products serving the commercial and industrial temperature control markets.

Founded in 1954, Disney-McLane and Associates is in its third generation of leadership. Headquartered in Cincinnati, Ohio, Disney-McLane & Associates represents leading manufacturers in the plumbing &
